SPECIAL PRIZE FOR SLOYD WORK.

During the school year a special prize was offered to the pupil in either the Sixth street school or the Fourth street school who in his sloyd course had the best grades in finished work, handling of tools, application, concentration and all points pertaining to the work. The prize was offered by Mr. Geo. K. Collins and was to be as nice a bicycle as could be procured. The board and committee in overlooking the work decided that as a whole the Fourth street school had the highest grade of work, in sloyd-paper, cardboard and wood; sewing, basketry, raffia work, stenciling and other departments, but that as an individual Ralph Dodson of the Sixth street school without doubt should be accorded the special prize. So to Ralph Dodson was accorded the first honor. He had to his credit a handsome book cabinet, a taboret, hatrack and table, all specimens of the most excellent workmanship.

An honor list was composed of the following pupils of both schools for the same line of work: Randolph Doll, John Staffacher, Wakefield Burkett, Benjamin Nichols, Jesse Flower, Alva Garriot, Joseph Maier, Edwin Heacock, Lorin Litchfield, Henson Garret, George Grist and Hasty Bidwell. Eight of these pupils are pupils of the Fourth street school and five of the Sixth street school.

ABOUT ADVERTISING.

The fifth most important factor in business is advertising, and advertising is simply announcing to the world in an effective way where you are who you are and what you have to offer in the way of human service or commodity.

All live men are advertisers, and the only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer to the world in the way of human service; and such a man is a dead one whether he knows it or not. Advertising is a legitimate and ethical proposition. Life is too short for you to hide yourself away, mantled in your modesty, and let the world hunt you out. Even the dead are advertisers, for on visiting a beautiful cemetery I noticed that on nearly every marble slab was given a list of the virtues, talents and beautiful qualities which the dead man was supposed to have carried in stock.—Exchange.

SIXTH STREET SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT AND EXHIBIT OF WORK.

The teachers and pupils of the Sixth street school were at home to its patrons, many friends, and numerous guests during the afternoon of June 16. A quantity of work was displayed showing the completed products of the courses in drawing, both free hand and mechanical, sloyd, sewing and the entire line of applied arts.

In the first year work special mention should be made of the posters done in the color lessons; of the woven rugs and the pin cushions and pillow covers in crossstitch, all designs having first been worked out by the pupils on block paper.

In the second and third grades the doll house with its furnishings planned and made by the children is worthy of especial mention, also the community posters representing Japanese life, customs and dress, another representing occupations. The crafts work in this class showed the beginnings of applied design in bags, pillows and various other models and also some most excellent raffia work.

The fourth grade had some especially strong work in freehand charcoal study from life, also some good things in pillow tops and table covers.

The fifth grade showed a continuation of Indian basketry, needlework in designs for bags, table covers, cushions and so on. Special mention should be given the stencil work of this grade as applied to a set of laundry bags made by the class.

The work of the Sixth grade shows a decided change in the manual work as at this point the boys begin wood sloyd and the girls begin sewing in a systematic and practical manner.

The Sixth, Seventh and Eighth grades had specimens of excellent work done in the sloyd room during the year and showing marked progress between their first model, a sleeve ironing board, and their second, a taboret, etc., until their last models made included tables, secretaries, book cabinets, settees, chairs, umbrella stands, mission lamps and candle holders, all finished and stained in the most approved manner.

The water color and charcoal work from life was exceptionally worthy of praise in the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth grades.

The work in design was placed by itself and showed strong development in original motifs and execution.

The sewing course showed a set of completed models of twenty pieces per week of basting, seaming, hemming, darning, buttonholes and many others. On exhibit were also finished garments such as plain kitchen aprons, fancy white aprons, corset covers darned stockings and other things showing the practical application of a most practical course.

The entire list of work won sincere praise and admiration universally from the four to five hundred people who had responded to their invitations to witness it.

During the afternoon punch and wafers were served at flower decked tables in each room under the direction of representative mothers.

The program of music was rendered out of doors. The pavilion was transformed into a bower of ferns and pepper boughs, and with an immense American flag for a background made an appropriate stage as the occasion was held on flag day. The audience seated under the awnings and the shade of adjoining trees listened to the following pretty program:

The music of the upper grades of the school received especial and warranted praise for their excellent work. The choruses were all well chosen and were rendered in an intelligent and artistic manner under the direction of the music teacher, Mrs. M. H. Anderson.

Miss Ida M. Waite, principal of the school, Mrs. M. H. Anderson, special teacher of music, art, sloyd and sewing, and the school's able corps of teachers deserve especial praise and commendation for the manner in which the program was executed and for the most excellent line of work which they were able to submit to public view.

The Eighth grade satisfactorily completed its course of work under the supervision of Miss Mable Noggle and the following pupils are qualified to enter the Union high school next fall: Edna Alley, Montgomery Coole, Dorothy Dow, Owen Dibbern, Ralph Dodsworth, Jesse Flower, Alva Garrott, Mariam Garrott, Steven Haviland, Reta Kimball, Edna Love, Ruth Penhollow, Alpha Prindle, Ruth Sanford, Edith Snow, Fay Stannard, Clyde Shively, Edward Williams, Ruby Vose.

WEST GLENDALE.

Mr. Arthur Miner was one of a party who journeyed to Mt. Wilson and enjoyed a delightful time over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson and daughter, formerly of West Glendale, but now of Los Angeles, were the guests of friends on Sunday.

Mrs. Charley Wolfe and children who have been visiting in Peoria, Ill., the past three months, returned to their home on Ivy street on Tuesday morning.

Miss Merva Scott gave a birthday party Monday lost at her home 1551 Vine street. The table was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the young folks present had a very pleasant time.

The meetings at the West Glendale M. E. church continue throughout this week until and including Sunday evening. They have been very successful, forty-eight persons uniting with the church last Sunday. Rev. Martin Armstrong and Mr. Farrar, singer, are in charge and will go from here to El Monte next week to conduct a series of union meetings there.

Mr. Gus Peters, sr., has returned from his eastern trip. He reports the weather in New York exceptionally warm, with the thermometer still soaring. Mr. Peters also states that through Oklahoma the cattle are dying for lack of feed and the dry weather. In traveling through Mexico he had the opportunity of seeing some of the destruction due to the late battles that have been going on. He brought home many mementos of his trip.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT THE WEST GLENDALE M. E. CHURCH.

The following excellent program was given at the church on Sunday and was witnessed by a crowd that taxed the seating capacity of the church. Every number was rendered in an excellent manner, and although the children had attended the regular Sunday school previous to the exercises, they are to be commended for their good behavior throughout the entire morning. This includes all the children from the tiniest infant of the cradle roll up to the larger ones. Miss Helen McMullen sang a beautiful solo entitled "The Endless Day" in a charming manner, and the Boys' Brigade of the Sunday school were seen to excellent advantage in a drill that was performed without a flaw. Mention is to be made also of the recitation of Master Wilbur Booth, a tiny young man of some two years of age. The superintendent, Mr. Henderson, desires to express his appreciation to all parties concerned for their efforts in making a success of "Children's Day."

SCHOOL MEETING

Plans for Intermediate School Building Discussed—Casa Verdugo Wants New District

There were about fifty people present at Odd Fellows hall Thursday evening of last week, assembled for the purpose of further instructing the trustees of the grammar school district in regard to the expenditure of the results of the proposed bond issue. Mr. O. A. Lane, chairman of the committee appointed at the former meeting, made the committee report. The principal recommendations were the following: A two-story brick building for intermediate school purposes, sloyd, domestic science, etc., on the site between Third and Fourth streets, eight rooms including auditorium, cost not to exceed $18,000. A four-room frame building on the Doran street site, at a cost not to exceed $7000 including furniture, the building to be built so as to receive additions later as necessary. The purchase of 12 lots for this latter school, Mr. Lane stating that the twelve lots would comprise a piece of ground 280 by 320 feet in dimensions. There was a long-drawn-out debate over the adoption of the report. During this discussion a committee from Casa Verdugo consisting of Messrs. Richardson, Larkey and Newby, expressed the desires of that section. Their ideas were somewhat indefinite, however, except that in a general way they agreed as to the desirability of a new district comprised of the foothill region north of the wash. Mr. Richardson also expressed the idea that a new school house should be erected in that section and that it should be an ornament to the neighborhood. He did not seem to realize that Central avenue is the western limit of the district and that a new district if organized must take territory from West Glendale as well as from Glendale. Of the three representatives speaking for Casa Verdugo Mr. Richardson was the only one residing in the Glendale school district. Chairman Watson called attention to the fact that if the Casa Verdugo section should be cut off from the Glendale school district it would lose the benefits of the proposed intermediate school with the new departments of practical work to be taught therein. The report was finally adopted. Later, on motion of Mr. J. R. White, jr., the action of the meeting in adopting the report was reconsidered, the result being that the trustees were instructed to secure fourteen lots instead of twelve for the site on Doran street.

Mr. Charles E. Shattuck presented a plan for the intermediate school building, planned after suggestions by Mrs. Anderson and other teachers. The plan in a general way seems to be modeled after the style of the high school building, and Mr. Shattuck did not encourage the idea that it could be built within the $18,000 limit. The cost would probably run between $20,000 and $25,000. Both Mr. Meeker and Mr. Lane called the attention of the meeting to the fact that the things desired could not be secured within the proposed $40,000 limit. The meeting was very harmonious throughout.

Mrs. G. J. Nethery was hostess Monday at the monthly gathering of the maids and matrons in the Country Club parlors. The afternoon was most enjoyably and profitably spent in listening to the address made by Rev. E. Stanton Hodgin of Unitarian church, Los Angeles, on the "Psychology of Fashion." The pleasures of the afternoon were further added to by the solo of Mrs. Edmund Shank, who was accompanied by Miss Sue Shank. The serving of dainty refreshments completed a pleasant afternoon.

There were about forty-five persons present, including a number of out-of-town guests. The decorative scheme was carried out in yellow and green.

GLENDALE, CAL., JUNE 23, 1911

The senior number of The Stylus turned out this week from the NEWS printery reflects great credit upon the students, the school and the print shop.

President and Mrs. Taft have had a silver wedding; not having received a special invitation to participate we refuse to send any silver, but even at this late date we heartily join in felicitations.

An interesting and not particularly instructive contest is now on between the ex-president of the United States and the editor of the Los Angeles Express on one side and the editor of the Los Angeles Times on the other. All of the parties are firing more or less widely and making occasional hits; fortunately the people are not compelled to believe all of the charges made, as none of the parties to the controversy are quite so bad nor so good as represented by enemies and friends respectively.

The off season of the year in general business circles is now setting in. The wise merchant, however dull he may find business, does not tell everybody that there is "nothing doing" but proceeds to enlarge his advertising space and make more noise in the world. He gets out the shopworn goods and cuts the prices on them so that people are compelled to buy them in self defense, or he lays in a new stock of something that his competitors have overlooked, tells the people what he has and what he is doing, and behold the last condition of that merchant is immensely better than the first.

Judge Monroe of the superior court of Los Angeles, compelled a son to contribute to the support of his father the other day. On another occasion recently he informed a wealthy citizen of an eastern state who had applied for a divorce from his wife, that Los Angeles is not Reno and that divorces are not passed out in the courts here to all applicants. Such a display of the old-fashioned virtue of common sense by a judge on the bench is notable and commendable and gives cause for the hope that it may have numerous imitators.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

Colonel Goethels in constructing the Panama canal is encountering very serious trouble caused by the slides that are constantly occurring along the Culebra cut. This cut is nine miles long and it is stated in the Scientific American that at present over a score of these slides are in motion, the largest having area of fifty acres.

There seems to be no remedy for the trouble and nothing to be done but to continue removing the dirt as fast as it slides into the canal. No fear is expressed, however, as to the final result; it is fully expected that the work will be completed as promised in 1915.

BREEDING BETTER MEN.

A recent number of the Scientific American has a striking editorial on the "Science of Breeding Better Men." It starts out by referring to the case of the notorious woman Ada Juke, "the mother of criminals." From her there were directly descended one thousand two hundred persons, of whom one thousand belonged to the class of criminals, paupers and degenerates. One of the statements made prophesies disaster in store for Great Britain, and is the one to the effect that fifty per cent of the births in England occur in the ranks of the undesirables, although that class of citizens comprises only 25 per cent of the population. The words of Huxley are quoted as indicating the proper attitude statesmen and lawmakers should take in reference to this vital subject, "We are sorry for you (he is reported to have said) we will do our best for you, but we deny you the right to parentage."

TWO BAD LAWS.

With the air filled with the loudly expressed idea of "giving the government back to the people," it seems singular that any considerable body of citizens could be found to uphold such a measure as the Storm Water district act of 1909 constitutes. This act gives to the supervisors of the county the arbitrary power to create a storm water district without any reference of the matter to the people except that they are granted the right to enter a protest, which the governing body of the county may or may not regard. The present agitation for the creation of a district to control the Verdugo wash calls attention to the iniquity of the law. In this instance it is shown that on the petition of about a dozen property owners the county is compelled to expend a large sum for map work, engineering advertising and postage; for every property holder in the proposed district must be given notice by registered mail of the proposed action. Supervisor Pridham is reported as saying that the expense to the county in this particular instance will be something near fifteen hundred dollars. The same spirit of disregard for the wishes of the people is expressed in this measure as is shown in our present school law which practically gives to the trustees the arbitrary power to levy on the school district any tax which they may deem desirable. Formerly, before the present era of "reform," questions of extra taxation for special purposes were presented to the people for a decision and not left to the judgment of a few individuals temporarily in authority. Such laws as these are put upon the statute books by the efforts of a few interested individuals, who like Ben Butler's widow, "know what they want," the majority of the legislators neither having the time nor the inclination to study their provisions nor the imagination necessary to foresee their practical working. As long as we are supposed to have a democratic government, the people have a right to object to being ruled by the few law makers who consider themselves "experts" and therefore best qualified to give the people that which they do not ask for, but which in the opinion of the experts, they ought to have.

"REFORMED LOS ANGELES."

Usually the truth is to be found between the two extremes and we fancy that this is the case in regard to the purification of the city of Los Angeles. There are those who fondly imagine that all of the work done in the way of adopting new laws, putting opt old officials and installing new ones, was working so effectually for a better condition of things that civic regeneration has actually been accomplished. In fact, Los Angeles has been pointed out as a city where great things have been done [illegible] way of better government, without waiting to see what the real results were. Recent events there show that there is still much work to be done before the city will serve as a model to be made the cynosure of observers at a distance. On the other hand we have not much sympathy with those hypocritical opponents of the new order of things who would seem to imply by their utterances that the present condition of affairs is as bad as the old. Even to have a brief spell of decency in municipal affairs is something gained and certainly they are doing some things better in Los Angeles than they once did. In every reform movement a number of politicians manage to get in on the crest of the wave and are swept into power and place. Their true character is not at once made apparent, but time develops it and in the end they go down to the place reserved for their kind. Reform movements are carried on by enthusiasm and when their scope is so general as it is at present there is the ever present fact to be considered that enthusiasm while an excellent starter has not good staying qualities. Enthusiasts, like other birds are prone to flock together and in flocking they are given to making noises indicative of a sense of their self-sufficiency which has a tendency to drive away from their habitat the conservatives who believe that "All is not gold that glitters." The enthusiasts who have carried on the political reform of Los Angeles up to this time are now confronted with some world old problems which cannot be solved by a committee of experts, however well they may be versed in the literature and theory of their cult and it is only a question of time when they will have to call to their aid some of the hard-headed students of the problems of the world as it is, to assist in working out the final solution.

THE VERDUGO WASH.

The movement toward the formation of a "Storm Water" district, which has been given impulse by a few property owners, but which we believe is opposed by a very large majority of the people resident in the proposed district, is a most serious one and should be so treated by the people of this community. This paper is opposed to the formation of the district for a number of reasons. In the first place we do not believe that any necessity for such action can be shown. There are sections in this county along the base of the mountains where flood waters do more or less damage every year, by reason of the fact that the streams swollen by floods are liable to break over their natural boundaries and go off at almost any tangent. But there is no such menace here. The writer's acquaintance with the Verdugo Canyon stream extends back about thirty years and during that time there have been occasions when the stream has left its course and done some damage it is true, but the damage done has always been local and could have been prevented in every case by a little work and attention applied at the right time. The damage done during the past two winters, which is the probable cause of the present agitation, was near being serious, it is true, but when it is taken into consideration that no preventive measures were taken, the responsibility cannot fairly be put upon Providence. Bridges were put in which were not properly protected and the gradual cutting away of the bank had the easily foreseen effect. Nothing has been done yet by the way to repair these bridges and their aproaches, due no doubt to the agitation of this question which is a proposition to levy a special tax upon the whole neighborhood, and if done would relieve both county and railroad company of the necessity of doing certain work which devolves upon them otherwise. When this storm water district matter is disposed of, the county and the railroad company will no doubt get together and put in a proper bridge on Brand boulevard, and the county will repair the Louise street bridge approaches and possibly do it in such a manner as to insure there being no repetition of the damage the next time the rain falls.

The general experience California has had with these special districts shows that almost invariably they are expensive affairs and half the time do not accomplish the thing they are created for. The three trustees to be elected if the district is formed, serve without pay, it is true, but not so the clerk, the attorney, the special engineer, indeed there is opportunity for expenses created by every move of the body which it is proposed to saddle upon the community.

There is one way to handle this local problem that will be as nearly just as any that is likely to be suggested, as opposed to the formation of a district which is a proposition lacking any element of justice for it takes in a large territory much of which is not even indirectly affected by the Verdugo wash. Let the cities of Glendale and Tropico and the property [illegible] wash form a commission of three members, one from each of the sections named, who shall have the matter in charge, but who shall have no power to incur any expense to exceed a sum to be fixed by the three parties to the contract. Whether the expense be divided equally into three parts is a matter for adjustment, the municipalities could add the required sum to the tax levy and the property owners in the district along the wash could collect their proportion. Knowing that the sum to be expended was not to exceed a certain fixed limit, the property owners would doubtless pay it cheerfully. These commissioners could see that the channel was cleared out, the exposed portions of the banks of the stream protected in some comparatively inexpensive manner and that the stream be patrolled in time of danger. Nothing more than this is required. Let the county and the railroad company do their duty in providing bridges and roads and taking sensible steps to protect them, but deliver us from turning our property over to a body of theorists with full power to assess us without limit.

The Woman Question Again—Replies to J. L. W.

VOTES FOR WOMEN.

Editor GLENDALE NEWS:

John Lacking Wisdom in last week's NEWS stated that there is no question between us on the woman suffrage principle. Must have had a change of heart. Are you going to vote for the amendment? J. L. W. knows I am not a prizefighter, but I will always stand up for justice and right, defend my principles and if necessary fight for them.

I deny that uinversal male suffrage is a colossal or even a wee bit of a mistake. It is right; we ought to have it not only universal male, but just universal suffrage, and that will include votes for women, the question under discussion. What good reason is there why a man should vote that does not apply to woman as well? A man pays taxes, so does woman, and if we look at the taxlists of this valley we find that the majority of taxpayers are women, and if you deny them the right to vote you better not tax them.

You may say women ought not to vote, because they are unfit to follow the vocations of men. That has nothing to do with voting. The man with the hard job, the man with the soft job, the man who is looking for a job and the fellow who does not need a job, all vote. Women have entered the industrial field and are today working side by side with men in all kinds of business and in all lines of industry. Surely a woman in a hobbleskirt would make a poor plowhand, or dressed in a hoop skirt would be but a poor success climbing telegraph poles, or doing the work of a steeple jack. But I have seen some funny acting plowboys and but a very few of us could compete with a steeple jack. Woman works in the store, the office and factory, she can try a law suit, type, telegraph, preach a sermon and keep books, she is a dentist, a doctor, a barber, a druggist, a photographer, an engineer, a teacher, a farmer, a banker and an artist. She seldom goes on strike or boycot. She is almost immune to corruption and defalcation and graft. England has as some of her most illustrious sovereigns an Elizabeth and Victoria. France boasts of a Joan of Arc, a Charlotte Corday and a Madame Curie. Florence Nightingale organized the best army hospital service in the world and made it effective.

Wendell Phillips said: "You cannot read history unless you read it upside down, without admitting that woman, cramped, fettered, excluded, degraded as she has been, has yet sometimes, with one ray of her instinctive genius, done more to settle great questions than all cumbrous intellect of the other sex has achieved." Ahaserus said unto Esther: "Demand what thou wilt even unto the half of my kingdom, it shall be thine. Thou art not my slave. Thou art not my maid. Thou art my equal and my queen. Stand not in my shadow. Kneel not at my feet, but seat thee on the throne beside me and together we will rule over Israel."

Do you think for one moment that the men of Glendale Valley and California will let it be said of them after October 10, 1911, that old Ahasnerus was more just than they?

E. FRAM.

A STEP BACKWARD.

Editor GLENDALE NEWS:

Your correspondent J. L. W. expresses the hope that many will reply to his remarks on the suffrage question.

There is little in his last article that calls for reply, except the backward step he has taken in the world's progress while giving no weighty reasons or arguments for his views he simply takes the position that only a part of the people should be allowed to vote.

Pray tell us in your next what part of the people should be given the exclusive right to govern the other part. Probably you would demand an educational and a property qualification. Sir, from what class today comes our greatest grafters and most notorious crooks? Is it not from the educated class? From what class come those who corrupt our city, state and national governments and legislatures? Is it not from the class of men who have great and unearned wealth? Corruption in government can come from no other class, for only they have the means and incentive.

Was Lincoln wrong when he said that you can not fool all the people all the time and that he would rather trust all the people than a part of the people; and that no man was good enough to govern another man. Or did Thomas Jefferson make the mistake of his life when he gave voice to the self-evident truth that a just government derives its powers from the consent of the governed?

Take any fundamental principle of law or government that pertains to the general welfare of all the people, on that issue we would rather trust the voice of all the people as being the voice of God than of any part of the people.

We take it that governments are instituted or should be to promote the welfare and happiness of all the people. If you select a certain class they will make laws and govern for the interests of their class. The great cry of humanity today is for justice. It does not take a man of wealth to have a realization of justice; to the contrary the more wealth he has the more he is blinded to the demands of justice. Give us justice and we will soon be rid of classes. Justice would level up and soon eliminate the two extremes, "The malefactors of great wealth and the ignorant and vicious. You are eminently correct when you say that it is too late to disenfranchise a part of the male voters. We are not doubling on our tracks. We are facing the sunrise. If as you assert women are no more virtuous than men we would be pleased to have you give us your definition of virtue in its "wider sense." If to be more gentle, kind and loving to children and dumb animals, to be foremost in all charitable, philanthropic and temperance work, to be freer from the vices of swearing, tobacco and liquor using, more patient, more self-sacrificing and devoted to the welfare of her offspring does not constitute virtue and place her higher on the roll than man, then for one I do not understand virtue in its wider and proper sense.

Few will take issue with you when you lay down the proposition that we need more honesty in commerce and religion. Like the great mass of the people today you see that here is something radically wrong. Modern commerce is based on fraud and dishonest profits, and modern religion buttresses and supports commercial methods. Roosevelt warned the captains of industry of the impending crisis when he told them that they must submit to a curtailment of the privileges of plundering the people. Taft also predicted in his Boston speech that Socialism will triumph unless they show more regards for the rights of the people. Also Senator Cummings in a recent speech expressed the belief that the next decade would see a revolution either peaceful or by violence.

Yes, we need the combined wisdom, the combined interests and love of justice of all the people to safely carry us through. Let us hope peacefully to a better day. R. GILHOUSEN.

Your correspondent, J. L. W., takes a most peculiar position regarding the exercise of the right of suffrage. He says: "A certain number of men and women should be selected to vote." How selected, and by whom? He continues: "And the fewer the better for the welfare of the country." Yes, let's turn back to the days of kings and nobles, when the people's only duty was to obey. Mr. W. is apparently imbued with some antiquated Old World ideas.

If I remember his original letter correctly, he would make the possession of property the qualification for voting. Tommy rot! As if the possession of property, whatever the methods used in acquiring it, gives one great ability to vote on questions of common interest. If this desirable (?) disfranhcisement of the propertyless could be brought about, wouldn't J. L. W. want to go a step farther? Wouldn't it be the part of wisdom—on his novel principle that the fewer the voters the better—wouldn't it be wise to separate the millionaires from the rest of the propertied, and let them do the voting for everybody? Piffle!

No, J. L. W., making the ownership of property the basis for the right to vote on any question would not be so just nor nearly so productive of good government as a strict educational qualification; but even the latter would not be just under a system where all have not an equal opportunity to obtain an education.

As to woman suffrage being only a matter of expediency, I would say that the right to vote is fast becoming a necessity to thousands of women, in order that they may influence legislation in their behalf.

Glendale a Saloonless Town.

We are still growing in favor with home-loving, law-abiding citizens. The cause, we believe, that swells our population is "no saloons," and with strong sentiment against all such evil, we can always be such a town.

We who have pledged ourselves against the liquor traffic need all the good forces on our side. We were pleased to note when the membership cards were returned to us after the banquet that ten new names had been added to our numbers, six men and four ladies.

One of the first things that impresses a visitor as he or she steps off the cars is the absence of saloon signs, the smell of beer, and the usual crowd of bums, loafers and drunks, the products of the licensed system. The visitor will readily see a magnificent school building, but no saloons for the children to pass on their way to school; a clean, prosperous business center, but the business men do not seem to think a saloon necessary to draw trade. Most all of them know that the money spent over the bar would never be spent at their places of business. A goodly number of churches also adorn our town, yet there are no rescue missions necessary to care for the products of the license system.

Some few of the pastors are voting Prohibitionists, and are winning the young men in large numbers to attend church services, there being no saloons or pool rooms to ruin them in this saloonless town. With an aroused conscience manifested in the desire of the people to see the laws enforced, we can raise children without their having to pass a drunkard on our streets in this saloonless town.

The commercial world is continually saying: "You shall not work for us unless you are a total abstainer." We need to start our boys and girls out right, and not have them acquire the habit that unfits each one like touches intoxicating drinks for service in this life of earning a living; and, too, if we could persuade the owners of vineyards to produce "sweet grape juice" from grapes, which is so nourishing and harms no one, in place of wine, which poisons all who drink it, it would benefit all future generations. question, agitate "sweet grape juice," Friends, keep this in mind, and when you converse with anyone on the grape and soon we will see the results of such agitation.

We hope physicians will be conspicuous by their absence at the banquet being prepared to be held in the grounds of Brewer Busch. That palace of a home was built by destroying the homes and happiness of uncounted families, whose all has been poured into the coffers of this brewer and saloonkeeper. We often think what would be the spiritual, intellectual, moral and physical condition of a saloonless nation, and this would be a probability if all Christians would vote as they pray. In this way only can a saloonless nation be secured.

GOOD OF DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

May Readily Be Seen to Be a Most Important Part of Girl's Education.

Domestic science is that part of a girl's education which specially prepares her for a home maker and renders her a constant dispenser of good cheer. The object of the science is to promote universal good health and banish drudgery from the house, to which the girls must be led to constantly apply the facts given in educational lines to special home needs, whereby home duties can be raised from irksome tasks to pleasant occupations and interesting experiments. Domestic science shows the evil effects which result from improper habits of life in the matter of food and drink, and shows the ideal home conditions. It shows the processes of breadmaking, the spoiling of food, the possible prevention of disease, etc.

It is a most excellent thing that this important branch of study is now included in most of the agricultural universities. It gives the farmer's daughters an equal chance with the farm lads to become proficient in the particular work which falls to their lot.

Terry is a great coffee drinker, and many are the expedients he will undertake to get it when he is without funds. The other evening he walked into a cafe and said to the proprietor:

"Good evening, Mr. M."

"How are you, Terry?" was the response.

"Pretty good, pretty good, barrin' a bad t'roat. It's glad I am to see yerself lookin' so smart and yer doin' so well in yer business, now, ain't yer? It's glad I am, too, about that. By the way, Mr. M., would yer be afther trustin' me this evenin'?"

"Trust you! Terry, I wouldn't be trustin' my own father."

"Thrue fer you, Mr. M. If I'd knowed yer father as well as you perhaps I wouldn't trust him meself!"

And Terry got his coffee and rolls.—Chicago News.

When Nature Was Timekeeper.

In the British museum is a large stone composed of carbonate of lime, which would serve perfectly as a day laborer's calendar inasmuch as it would indicate to him every Sunday and holiday of the year, though not the day of the month. Moreover, the stone is an actual time record of the work done for a long period in an English coal mine.

The "Sunday stone," as it is called, was removed from a colliery drain. When the miners were at work the water running through the drain left a deposit colored black by the coal dust, but when no work was being done the water ran down clear and left a white deposit. These deposits in the course of time built up the stone. Each day of work left a black streak, immediately followed by a white streak made during the night. Wide white streaks indicate the holidays and Sundays.—Harper's Weekly.

— THE — CASH INTRIGUE

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

Copyright, 1909, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

CHAPTER XI.

THE forces allied with Rollins themselves attempted publicity. But against their publicity Breed had put an enormous practical benefit; against their appeals he had put an enormous practical benefit; against their attacks he had put an enormous practical benefit, and the tide of public favor, springing not from the printed pages of the morning and afternoon papers, but from lip to lip, set in so strongly in his direction that it reached every investor. Bread at 4 cents—later at cost!

To the victor belongs the spoils, and the spoils of this war were the proxies. Breed succeeded through Kelvin in that apparently impossible dream of every railroad man since Stephenson invented the steam engine—the concentration of every railroad in the United States under one management. Then he sent for Rollins.

"Well, I kept my word," said Breed. "I told you I meant to have control of every mile of railroad in the United States, and now I have it. I have sent for you to take over their management."

Rollins was pale, and there were dark rings under his eyes. "I don't know if I want it. There is only one condition under which I could accept, and it would be folly in me to expect you to grant me that."

"You might mention it," observed Breed dryly.

"The condition is that I may do as I see fit, may work absolutely unhampered. Man," he suddenly burst forth, "you don't know how many years I have dreamed of this! It has been the ambition of my life to put this great public utility upon the plane of its proper relation to the public."

"That is my own dream," Breed declared.

"I find belief difficult," replied Rollins. "Moreover, I had imagined that Mr. Kelvin here was to have some say in the matter of management."

Breed smiled and looked at Phillip. "I have larger work for him," he said.

"Larger!" exclaimed Rollins. "Can there be anything bigger than to combine a quarter of a million miles of railroad, every foot of transportation highway in the United States, under one economic head, eliminating graft and waste and putting them all upon a working basis of legitimate profit and public safety?"

Breed waved his hand. "Much larger," said he. "This is only an incident. I wish you would tell me just what reforms you propose instituting, Mr. Rollins."

"First of all," said Rollins earnestly, reassured, "I would secure for every through line 120 pound open hearth steel rails, made in new mills from larger ingots, with the cones of impurity cast entirely aside and the compact residue kneaded into a proper consistency by an entirely new system of rolls. There are other things that need to be done—the establishment of perfect block systems, of automatic brakes and other accident preventing devices, and the abolition of grade crossings—but the main matter of public safety rests in perfect rails. Ten years ago I tried to fight this proposition, and I nearly succeeded. The Tallahassee Iron and Coal company offered to make open hearth rails to my specifications. The Unified Steel corporation found that to control the stock of the Tallahassee Iron and Coal company was much cheaper and more profitable than to spend the needed millions in re-equipping their plant."

"Your first step, then, I suppose, would be to begin a fight on the Unified Steel corporation," observed Breed.

"That, in a nutshell, is our problem," declared Rollins.

"Your problem is already solved, Mr. Rollins," said Kelvin, with a smile. "Mr. Breed's control of the railroads has left the Unified Steel corporation high and dry. Moreover, we have secured entire control of the Iroquois Iron range, and, no matter what the Unified Steel corporation does, we shall set up our own rolling mills and make rails by our own process from our own ore."

"But the program will be left entirely to your own discretion," interrupted Breed. "You shall have a contract for one year, renewable for ten years if your preliminary steps meet with my approval."

"Allow me to understand," said Rollins. "In that year I am to be absolutely without interference in any way?"

"With two exceptions," replied Breed. "I want a private rebate on all shipments of bread or cereal stuffs. Next, here is a list of names. These men are not to be employed in any capacity nor benefited in any way."

Rollins looked over the list and smiled. "There isn't a man here whom I would lift a finger to save. There is not a man in that list but has had an interest in car company, a coupler company, a brake company, a locomotive tire company or some other manufacturing concern which furnished supplies to his own railroad at enormous prices. There is to be no graft in the new construction."

"Certainly not," agreed Breed. "These roads must be conducted for legitimate profit and public safety. If there is any graft I want it myself, and I am content to take dividends for mine. For one year you are the absolute dictator of the largest empire in the world—the combined railroads of the United States."

From his desk he took a contract, confined to one sheet of paper, which he handed to Rollins.

That gentleman took the paper, read it over and caught his breath. "It is a generous salary," he admitted, "more generous than I should have dared to ask for."

"Huh! I am saving money on it," declared Breed. "It's only a portion of a thousand fancy salaries that I expect you to stop at once."

Rollins nodded his head in comprehension. "I will take great pleasure in stopping a few of them."

Kelvin conducted Rollins to a room next to his own, that had been fitted with a commodious desk and all that should go with it. Rollins sat upon the desk and looked about him smilingly.

"Looks fairly complete, doesn't it? Did you have a hand in this?"

"No," said Kelvin, puzzled and piqued as well. "It has been arranged for a long time, I think. Mr. Breed has probably been planning to make Forest Lakes the capital of New York city."

"Perhaps the capital of the United States," retorted Rollins, smiling in answer to the jest. "Who knows? He has a good start. He has paid a lot of attention to detail too. Everything is complete now except for a secretary," and idly he touched one of the row of buttons along the right hand edge of his desk, the one marked "Secretary."

Instantly the door of the adjoining room opened, and a sober faced and noncommittal looking young man, ruddy cheeked and clean eyed and tow headed, walked in, notebook in hand.

"Hello!" said Rollins. "Who are you?"

"I am your secretary, sir. I came last night. My name is Jens Nelson."

"Swedish, eh?" guessed Rollins.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Nelson. "I am a graduate of the Minnesota Technical college, founded by Mr. Breed, and am one of his scholarship men."

Rollins smiled over the naivete of this admission.

"All right, Mr. Nelson," said he. "You have a telegraph operator here, I believe. Mr. Kelvin?"

"Wireless," amended Phillip.

Rollins glanced at his row of buttons and nodded his head. "Mr. Nelson, you may take these marconigrams," and without any hesitation he began dictating peremptory discharges to a long list of railroad officials.

Thus set in the new empire—the empire of the iron highway, an empire which held under its absolute control the commercial destinies of the nation, an empire more powerful than any ever conceived by man. It was a reign that began peacefully and quietly as the stern Rollins, with a smile, dispossessed half a thousand men from their fat sinecures. But as he worked Henry Breed, attended by Dr. Zelphan and carrying a bundle of golf sticks, stopped in the door a moment.

"By the way, Rollins," said he, "there is only one personal provision I wish to make, and that must be seen to from the first. I want my dividends all in cash—nothing else, understand—just cash!"

One day several months later Dr. Zelphan was very angry. He couldn't find Breed. While he was searching for the millionaire Sumner Rollins appeared.

"IN VIOLENCE," RETURNED BLAGG.

"I came down rather unexpectedly," he said. "I suppose Kelvin's in his office?"

"No," said the doctor, rather shortly. "Mr. Kelvin is not in his office. He is out with Mrs. Rensselaer and young Rensselaer and Miss Breed fishing—fishing in a private lake for pet fish that come up to be fed when they are called!"

"It doesn't sound much like sport," confessed Rollins, "but, after all, I envy them. Where is Mr. Breed?"

Again the frown returned that all the morning had crossed Dr. Zelphan's brow. "I don't know," he snapped, "but he is some place about the house I'll find him for you."

He stepped into Henry Breed's dim old library, slamming the door behind him.

Going back through the upper hall, Rollins stopped for a moment in Blagg's room, where the wireless operator sat idly at his instrument, the greenish light giving to his gaunt features a particularly deathlike ghastliness.

He handed Rollins two wireless messages, which the latter read with a passing frown. One was signed by the head of an immense packing house in Chicago, the other by the president of the largest fruit shipping company on the western coast. To both he dictated the same curt reply:

"Discussion positively closed."

Blagg read the answers with a grim smile. "Allow me to congratulate you," said he. "You may not know it, but you are doing splendid preliminary work for the social equity cause."

"The preliminary work?" repeated Rollins. "How do you think it will be finished?"

Rollins shrugged his shoulders. "Violent conversation largely, I guess," he rejoined.

Blagg's eyes snapped. "Deeds!" he declared. "Let inequality and oppression go on for but a short time more and there will be such a revolt from the darker depths of this country as not even France has ever known. There exists even now a close organization of the underdogs who are ready at a world to rise and undo the wrongs to which justice has grown blind."

"You seem to know a lot about it," commented Rollins.

Blagg calmed down his excitement with an effort. "I keep fairly well posted," said he. "Among other things I know that there is a branch of that organization which needs just such men as you."

"I am rather busy as it is," returned Rollins dryly and walked over to his own office. "Have you prepared the data I asked you to get ready, Nelson?" inquired Rollins.

"Yes, sir," replied Nelson. He walked across to a filing cabinet, brought from it a drawer, which he set upon Rollins' desk, and lifted up the spring. Rollins leafed through the indexed flaps, beneath which, very carefully arranged, were displayed the mileage distances by various routes between all important points in the United States, with the percentage of grade resistance figured in units, these, compounded with the mileage, showing the ultimate hauling resistance. It had been a tremendous task. It was neatly and perfectly accomplished, yet Nelson showed neither elation nor diffidence.

"Thank you," said Nelson quietly.

Rollins glanced up at him with puzzled curiosity. "That will do just now," said he, with a slight frown, and Jens walked composedly into his own room, a fathomless enigma to Rollins.

ABOUT STORM WATER

City Trustees Hold Meeting with Citizens—A Lively Talkfest—Committee Appointed

The open meeting of the city trustees Thursday of last week to advise with citizens in regard to the matter of establishing a storm water district in accordance with the notice published in this issue of the NEWS, proved to be a lively affair. Sidney Dell, Esq., who seems to be the father of the project, was the principal speaker and had to be called to order several times by Chairman White. Mr. T. E. Stanton of the Casa Verdugo Improvement Association, spoke for that organization favoring the proposition. Mr. W. C. Wattles and Mr. A. M. Watson were speakers in opposition, the former speaking from an engineer's standpoint, the latter displaying an intimate knowledge of the law and its workings in similar cases up to date. Mr. O. A. Lane, city trustee, opposed the project as did some others. There was considerable feeling engendered and at times the gavel of the chairman and the voices of near-orators vied with each other in an attempt to monopolize attention, the gavel always getting the best of it in the end. A committee of six was appointed to take the matter up and investigate it, making their report later when another meeting will be called. The committee consists of the following: T. E. Stanton, representing Casa Verdugo Improvement Association; Daniel Webster, city of Tropico; G. B. Woodberry, Glendale Chamber of Commerce; W. C. Wattles, Tropico Chamber of Commerce; O. A. Lane city of Glendale; L. C. Rice, Valley Improvement Association.

FAIR AND BAZAAR.

The ladies of the Altar Society of the Catholic church of Burbank will give on the grounds of the Santa Rosa hotel, June 24th, a fair and bazaar with Cafeteria dinner, winding up with a fine entertainment in the evening Everybody welcome.

On Friday evening Mrs. F. M. Litchfield of Isabelle street assisted by Mrs. Charles Grist and Mrs. P. A. Moore entertained the members of the Eighth grade of the Fourth street school in behalf of her son, Lorin Litchfield. The house was prettily decorated in Shasta daisies and greenery. The early part of the evening was spent in music and games until refreshments were served on the lawn. Here a long table was set under the trees which were lighted with Japanese lanterns. A flashlight picture was taken of the guests after they were seated at the table. Following the refreshments more games were enjoyed out of doors.

Mrs. M. O. Ryan, class teacher, was honor guest of the occasion. Mrs. Ryan was made the recipient of a very handsome hand-painted dresser set presented by members of her class.

Three-point Suspension, now adopted by all successful high-priced foreign cars, keeps all moving parts in line under all uneven road conditions, and this means minimum wear and long service.

Multiple-disc Clutch is the perfect clutch because it takes hold gradually yet positively, releasing instantly without momentum and allows of slipping without undue wear.

Shaft Drive is most efficient, absolutely dust-proof, noiseless and gives no trouble. The best records for endnrance and reliability were made by shaft-driven cars.

TROPICO

Miss Eulalia Richardson of Central avenue, has been entertaining for the last few days Miss Hazel Bardem of Salinas.

It is rumored around the Tropico streets that the Pacific Electric railway company will soon begin work on a station at this place.

J. A. Grant, the Tropico jeweler, has taken possession of his new home which was erected recently on Blanche avenue, Tropico.

After enjoying a visit with friends in the northern part of the state, Mr and Mrs. F. C. Richardson returned to their home at this place last Thursday.

A new home recently completed has been taken possession of by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Robinson and daughters, Miss Marjorie and Miss Florence.

H. W. Melrose has disposed of his interests in the Inter-Urban Sentinel and the paper is now published by the Sentinel Publishing company. N. C. Burch is editor and has complete charge of the sheet.

The residence which has been in course of construction for the past few weeks on El Bonita street has been completed and is now being occupied by the owner, Ben Elfgin and family, recently of Los Angeles.

Miss Cora Hickman, who has been passing the past several months in Imperial county, has returned to her home at this place. For several weeks Miss Hickman acted as editor of one of the papers of Brawley in the absence of the editor.

Another new home for the Richardson tract is that for which a contract has been let. It will be a 2-story structure and will be located at the corner of Cerritos avenue and Gardena street. Preliminary work has already been commenced.

Peter Gabaig is contemplating erecting several store rooms on San Fernando road near Central, and across the street from the present stores. The new buildings will be located on the ground where Mr. Gabaig's barn is now situated. It is claimed that three or four of the store rooms have already been spoken for and will be occupied as soon as the building is completed on Cerritos avenue.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The annual business meeting and luncheon was held at the home of Mrs Chas. Barker June 15. A dainty luncheon was served by the social committee to about forty members and guests. The tables were laid out of doors under the trees.

The business meeting was called at the regular time and splendid reports were given by the chairmen of each of the sections. The club was very much gratified to learn that through the efforts of some of their good workers enough money had been raised to make the final payment on the club lot.

Mrs. Barker as retiring president welcomed Mrs. Dwight Griswold and presented the gavel. Mrs. Griswold's response was most earnest and gracious and full of hope for good things for the club in the coming year.

OLD RESIDENT IS TAKEN BY DEATH.

After an illness of about a week at his home on Tropico avenue, William R. Light died last Monday morning, the cause of death being inflammation of the kidneys. Several times during his illness it was reported that he was improving, and for this reason the end was somewhat unexpected.

Mr. Light was one of the oldest residents of this city, having lived in this valley for the past twenty-eight years For the last several months he has been road overseer of this district, and has performed his duties faithfully.

The funeral services over the body of the deceased were held in the Pulliam undertaking parlors, on Fourth street, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. B. Hatch, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Tropico, and the musical numbers were given by Joseph Marple and Mrs. Fannie E. Marple. Interment was made in Forest Lawn cemetery.

Mr. Light is survived by a widow and four children, Mrs. Verne Harris of San Fernando, James, Arthur, Wayne and Leo Light of this place. At the time of his death Mr. Light was 55 years of age. The News extends to the bereaved ones tender sympathy in this the hour of their deep sorrow.

K. OF P. AT TROPICO.

It is now an assured fact that this city will soon be able to board a chapter of the Knights of Pythias lodge. A petition bearing the names of fifty Tropico members of the order has been sent to the Grand lodge at San Francisco and the institution of the lodge will take place in Logan's hall on the evening of July 8th. The Miradero lodge of Glendale has been asked to do the instituting. Immediately after the ceremony a supper will be served in the Tropico city hall, which is just across the street and which has been donated for the occasion. The repast will continue throughout the night and will be served to local members and visitors alike.

A meeting was held Monday evening when a committee on halls consisting of F. H. Davis, Charles Jennings and C. E. Shuey reported that satisfactory arrangements had been made for the halls for the lodge's meetings. P. Gabaig, W. J. Hibbert and George Howe, the committee on membership reported that more than fifty names were at that time on the petition. At this meeting J. A. Spence was appointed chairman, F. H. Davis was named secretary, and Charles Jennings was elected treasurer.

TROPICO CITY HALL BRIEFS.

A resolution was adopted at the last meeting of the board appointing J. S. Fishback street superintendent for the city at a salary of $35 per month. Mr. Fishback is now city marshall at a salary of $15 per month He will now receive $50 per month and will be expected to attend to the duties of both offices.

The motorcycle cops are not holding forth at Tropico now. At the last meeting a resolution was presented by John Hobbs asking that the services of these "chasers" be done away with. It is said that in many instances the arrests made by the cops were entirely uncalled for, and many of those arrested were not traveling as fast along San Fernando road when "pinched," as they are permitted to travel along the principal streets of Los Angeles.

An ordinance declaring the intention of the board of trustees to open and widen Brand boulevard between the northeasterly line of San Fernando road and the south line of Park avenue, has been read for the first time and laid over until the next regular meeting, when the second reading will take place.

Ordinances have been adopted establishing the grades of Park avenue from the westerly line of Glendale avenue to the easterly of the right of way of the Southern Pacific railway company, and establishing the grade of Cypress avenue from the westerly line of Glendale avenue and the easterly line of San Fernando road.

Ordinances establishing the grades of Laurel street, adopting the specifications for oiling and grading of streets, have been read for the first and second time.

ANNOUNCEMENT LUNCHEON.

Miss Katherine Wells of West Fourth street, assisted by her mother, Mrs. R. H. Wells, and her sister, Miss Harriet Wells, entertained at luncheon Tuesday noon.

Miss Deletta Buggeln of Williams, Ariz., was honor guest of the occasion which was held for the purpose of formally announcing the engagement of Miss Buggeln to Mr. Edwin J. Johnson of Bay City, Mich., to her many Los Angeles and Glendale friends.

A six-course luncheon was served at a beautifully decorated table. The centerpiece was an improvised altar at which a miniature bride and groom knelt under a bower of flowers which was hung with wedding bells and cupids. The color scheme was in green and white. Place cards were formed by tiny hand-painted bags of rice and marked places for the following guests: Miss Deletta Buggeln, honor guest, Mrs. S. Buggeln, mother of the bride-elect, Mrs. R. H. Wells, Miss Eloise Watson, Miss Mildred Powers, Miss Gertrude and Miss Bernadine Williams, Miss Berenice Williams, Miss Mamie Sheedy, Miss Estelle Rhoades, Miss Miriam Sanborne, Miss Jessie Allsopp and Miss Harriet and Katherine Wells.

Following the luncheon, the guests adjourned to the living room where they passed the afternoon making sachets for the bride's trunk and contributing recipes for her cookery book.

Miss Katherine Wells will accompany Miss Buggeln and her mother to their home in the latter part of July where she will take an active part in the preparations for the wedding.

WOMAN'S LYRIC CLUB.

This club gave a concert at the Auditorium Friday night of last week which was a most artistic and pleasing performance throughout. The club is composed of about eighty ladies and on the occasion of the performance last week they were tastefully gowned in white presenting an appearance in keeping with the harmony of their song. Mr. J. B. Poulin was the able director. The character of the music is indicated by the following extract from the program:

The club's numbers included: "Waken, Lords and Ladies Gay," (Matthews), "Ashes of Roses" (Gaul), "Sir Oluf" (Ware), "Indian Mountain Song" (Cadman), "Chanson Provencale" (Dell'Acqua-Shelley), "Cupid Made Love to the Moon" (Smith), "The Walnut Tree" (Schumann-Saar), "Entrance of the Gods in Walhalla," "Das Rheingold" (Wagner).

The soloists did excellent work and that done by the chorus was perfect. Mrs. H. E. MacMullin of Glendale, a member of the club, was one of the singers.

Occupying a box during the performance, were Messrs. Camden and Foote, the composers, who were invited to the stage, but could not be lured into speech making, although they expressed in private their pleasure at the work of the club, saying that it is one of the two or three best organizations of the kind in the United States.
